

MESSI KIDS AT HARD ROCK CAFE

Hard Rock International and global brand ambassador, Leo Messi, have taken their partnership to the next level by curating their first-ever Messi menu for kids, 'The Hard Rock Messi Kids Menu'.

Expanding on Hard Rock International's partnership with the world-renowned football sensation, 'The Hard Rock Messi Kids Menu' features the Messi X Burger, the Messi Golden Chicken Sandwich and other kid-friendly options, including a Bacon Cheeseburger, Hot Dog, Chicken Tenders, Mac & Cheese, Chicken Breast, Twisted 'N' Tasty Cavatappi Pasta or Kid's Salad Chillin' with Chicken, along with a special nod to the international sports icon in the form of a complimentary mini golden soccer ball toy, a collectable poster, activity sheet and stickers with every meal.

Pair one of these main meals with kid-approved sides like Fresh Fruit, Fries, or Veggies, and choice of beverage, for the ultimate kids' meal. Kids can now take a bite of greatness with this new menu addition at Hard Rock Cafe London and Hard Rock Cafe Piccadilly Circus.

DRESSED TO DELIVER AT THE POSTAL MUSEUM

Families can hope to channel their inner designer with an inventive family programme at the Postal Museum this Easter. For example, from 3-5 April there's a fun workshop to create your own postal round boardgame, using a range of craft materials and recycled resources. Then, from 10-12 April, children can design their own postal uniform for a hand puppet. After all, from a black top hat and bright red coat, to all-weather active wear, postal uniforms have made the local postie easy to spot for over 200 years.

The activities are all inspired by the museum's special exhibition Dressed to Deliver. The family-friendly display explores the history of postal uniforms and is included with entry to the museum, along with Easter holiday activities for 5-11 year-olds.

The Postal Museum tells the story of postal communication and its impact on a global society. At the museum, five centuries of communications history are brought to life. On a visit, you can experience interactive and family-friendly permanent and temporary exhibitions, join special events and learning activities, use modern research facilities and take an immersive ride on Mail Rail, London's secret Post Office underground railway.

OLLIE'S HOUSE CELEBRATES EASTER

Ollie's House, the South West London, pan-Asian hot spot known for its fusion of British and Asian cuisine, has launched an unlikely British Asian fusion dish.

The new Creme Egg Doughnut Bao has a crispy, textured outside, doughy bao flesh, and gooey crème egg melt in the middle. The Easter dessert is an explosion on the senses and tastebuds, which will not fail to both surprise and satisfy even the sweetest-toothed amongst us.

The Creme Egg Doughnut Bao is available for a limited time until 10 April at both Ollie's House Chelsea and Ollie's House Parsons Green.
